Case Study

Best practices and insights give a foundation and a hospital system a shared vision and action plan

Effective, efficient community benefit programs take mutual understanding.

To support its hospital system grantee, a foundation asked the Center to analyze and benchmark the community benefit landscape. The Center assessed relevant federal requirements, industry standards, and best practices nationwide – then, in collaboration with the grantee, examined the health system’s community benefit governance, management, programs, partnerships and spending.

The result: new opportunities

The partners discovered unexpected efficiencies, alignments and partnerships. Putting a Center plan into action, the foundation and system are now working more effectively together to improve their community benefit management, align their efforts, and gain success in addressing social determinants of health.
